EDUCATOR AS LEADER

OVERVIEW OF THE COLLEGE OF EDUCATION

The College of Education's demographics closely mirror those of the University's. As a teaching unit, the College of Education strives to prepare educators as leaders who will take the lead in transforming teaching and learning within: diverse settings, their schools, the state, the region, and the nation.

As a unit, we will be poised to anticipate and respond to changing demographics and societal expectations by regularly reviewing and updating programs to meet the needs of the time. Through collaborations with area schools districts, professional and community organizations, we aim to emphasize our shared commitment to the education and well-being of all students. Above all, the College of Education will endeavor to prepare competent educator leaders who will be known, individually and collectively, by their qualities of leadership. Our alumni will, in turn, cultivate similar qualities in those they teach and lead.
